

Special Bali

Bali is small, stretching approximately 140km from east to west and 80km from north to south. Running east to west and slightly off center, are a string of volcanic mountains, the tallest and most recently being active Mount Agung, which reaches 3.142m at its highest point and last erupted in 1963. The Balinese people have strong spiritual roots and despite the large influx of tourists in recent years, their culture is still very much. Choose Bali holiday packages for the best deal.
